My Adjustment

If you can see I make changes on our work in the following:

- I put line connecting Application Software and Operating system since application software is sometimes running in a operation system and operation system is running software applications.
- move the Raw data and Machine Language from under data processing to keyboard, since keyboard is the one inputting raw data.
- Change arrow from “Data Input to System Unit” to “Machine Language to System Unit” since system unit only reads machine language a series of 1’s and 0’s.
- Change arrow form “System unit to Data Output” to “Data Processing to Data Output” because data is needed to be process first back to human language before sending for data output to be displayed and easily understood by end user.
